THURSDAY MORNING, AUGUST 3, 1865.

The Lost Steamer.

On an occasion like the present, when every one is filled with a deep anxiety to know all that in any way relates to a catastrophe so terrible as that which lately befell the lost steamer, the fullest information that could possibly be received would seem meagre and unsatisfactory. In the present case, we know enough to awaken within us a feeling of the profoundest grief; but not enough to set at rest that fearful solicitude which those experience who do not know whether their friends and relatives are living, or whether they are numbered with the dead. We are told that only seventeen persons escaped from the fated vessel yet with a hope which is natural to the human heart, we put our imaginations to the task of devising ways in which we suppose others might have escaped. We think the hope may reasonably be indulged that of the ship's boats, some others, besides the one we already know to be safe, may have succeeded in reaching the shore. As to the time when the messenger left Crescent City or Camp Lincoln, we are not precisely informed, and we think it not improbable that others from the steamer may have been reached after his departure from the scene of the disaster.

From the statement given in the published report of the third officer of the ship, it is now certain that the vessel struck a hidden rock and went suddenly down. Of the rocks off Point St. George, the Superintendent of the Coast Survey of 1862 remarks: "Every one trading here knows that vessels should be very cautious of venturing out of the beaten track. The rocks are of a peculiar character, standing isolated like bayonets, with their points just below the surface." The same report, in another place, says: "A reef extends W. N. W. from Point St. George for a distance of six miles. There are ten or twelve outlying rocks and many sunken ones, with a passage running between them and those close to shore." Accordingly it will be seen that unless a vessel stands well out to sea, there is great danger in passing this reefy point.

A further account of the catastrophe will reach us soon. Another messenger will, no doubt, at once be dispatched from Crescent City, with additional information about the wreck. Our telegraphic dispatches this morning give all the particulars that have, so far, been gleaned. We can only wait in the hope that further information will show that more escaped than those whose names are mentioned in the brief list of the saved.

Canada and the United States.—It will be remembered that our Government gave formal notice some time ago that the arrangement between this country and Great Britain, which goes under the name of the "Reciprocity treaty" would be discontinued at the end of a given time. Under this treaty the trade between the United States and the British North American Provinces, has been a source of great profit to the latter. The time appointed for the termination of reciprocity, we believe, has not yet expired, but the treaty has now only a short time to run. Though [illegible] gave the people of the British provinces the advantage of free trade with us in a [illegible] number of [illegible] only, yet the [illegible] has been the [illegible] of greatly enhancing the [illegible] of the Colonies. They now contemplate with [illegible] the loss they will suffer by being obliged to give up a lucrative [illegible] with this country. And, from this, it has for some time been [illegible] that the Canadas are not in so [illegible] a condition as their people had hoped for. From the tenor of articles which are constantly [illegible] in the Colonial newspapers, we are [illegible] led to believe that the stagnation of industry and trade throughout the provinces is [illegible] and very great. The following from an East Canada paper, gives an idea of the state of affairs in that Province at the present time:

"At Astra and Roxton, a [illegible] number of houses are closed; families only, [illegible] by ten or a dozen at a time. [illegible] thing may be said of [illegible], Ely and [illegible], according to the [illegible], such desertion [illegible] in three townships. It is intimated that one-third of the population of these localities is going to the United States. The truth is, Canada is no longer what it was before the [illegible] of the war, now [illegible]. The [illegible] for the products of the British Provinces is [illegible], shared up [illegible] largely de[illegible] years. The Canadians [illegible] in regard to the project of Confederation, the Inter-Colonial Railway, [illegible] of the Hudson Bay Territory, and other schemes, designed to give a new impetus to the [illegible] prosperity. Meanwhile, the United States have settled their difficulties, and look more inviting than ever before."

Statements similar to this are made by many, or nearly all the journals of both the Canadas. Since the close of our war, now that the future peace and stability of this Government are assured, the people of the Provinces are flocking by thousands to the United States, rightly thinking that they will [illegible] in this country which they [illegible]. Foreseeing [illegible] the interruption of the trade that has for some years been carried on between our people and themselves, they anticipate and prevent it in individual instances, by removing from their country to ours. Meanwhile those who remain do not find the prospect an agreeable one. The Canadian railroads are losing their business, the productive energies of the country are failing, and for want of a market its products are gradually falling in value. The people of the Provinces hope that our Government will reconsider its purpose of putting an end to the reciprocity treaty, and that the advantages they have heretofore derived from it will be continued. It is quite certain, however, that the old course of trade will never be adopted. Were it done, Canada would be profited by it, and we should lose; for the benefits of this traffic were never reciprocal. It is not a [illegible] supposition that our Government will remove trade restrictions so as to give the British Provinces the benefit of the same system of exchange that our own States enjoy. Not until those Colonies are incorporated into our political system—if this measure is ever accomplished—will they become as prosperous as these States now are. The British Provinces are capable of becoming great and populous States; but while they are under the necessity of being treated as foreign countries by those with whom they should enjoy the most intimate intercourse, they cannot expect to make satisfactory progress in the way of greatness.

Low Water—Accident.—The steamer Nez Perces Chief, Captain Felton, was unable to reach Lewiston on her last trip. She succeeded in reaching a point some distance above the mouth of Snake river. The water was at too low a stage to permit her proceed further. On her return she was badly injured by striking a rock, and was with difficulty kept afloat until she reached Umatilla where she now lies awaiting repairs.

The proposition made by the National Monument Association to Mrs. Lincoln is said to have been accepted. The Monument will be built at Oak Ridge, and Mrs. Lincoln and her family are to have the use of the lot as a burial place.

In North Carolina an enrollment of the loyal voters is going on. Gov. Holden thinks it will be completed in time for the general election to take place by the middle of August.

Grote, the historian, has published a new translation of the works of Plato. This work is intended as a sequel to the translator's great History of Greece.

PARTICULARS OF THE WRECK.

Crescent City, July 30, via Jacksonville 31.—The steamer Brother Jonathan struck a sunken reef off St. George Point, eight or ten miles northwest from Crescent City, about half past one o'clock P. M. to-day, and went down in about forty five minutes afterwards, and all on board are supposed to be lost with the exception of seventeen persons and three children who came ashore with me in the ship's life boat at this place. About five o'clock P. M. all the small boats at this place went to the rescue. There is no hope of saving any one. Two boats swamped alongside the ship, and there were three boats left on the steamer. The rescued passengers are well cared for by the citizens here.

List of Saved.

James Patterson, Third Officer; David Farrell, steerage steward; Henry Miller, baker; Patrick Linn, fireman; Wm. Lowery, fireman; Edward Shields, sailor; Stephen Moran, waiter; Mrs. Mary Ann Tweedale, Mrs. Nina Bernhart and child, Mrs. Martha Stott and child, and four colored seamen.

8 o'clock.—The boats have returned and report having seen nothing of the wreck. We have given up all hope.

J. Patterson,
Third Officer.

Further Particulars.

Jacksonville, Aug. 2, 10 o'clock, A. M.—The last seen of General Wright, he was standing on board holding a life-preserver in his hand. There were two boats swamped before the one that the fourteen and the woman and child made their escape in. Captain Buckley had men out patrolling the beach all night and the next day, so as to pick up any bodies that might drift ashore but there was no drift of the ship, nor did any bodies come ashore up to two o'clock on the 31st ult.

The boat fired two guns, but it was thought that it was only a signal from some boat on her way up. There was nothing known of it until it was revealed by those who made their escape in the small boat. She was wrecked by running on a sunken rock off St. George Point near Crescent City.

San Francisco, August 2.

Nothing additional has been heard of the Brother Jonathan disaster. The nearest telegraph station, Jacksonville, is 130 miles distant from Crescent City or Camp Lincoln. The Brother Jonathan had six boats on board, three of which were Francis's patent life boats, and the others were common ship's surf boats, of capacity to carry 250 people, which is more than the whole number on board.

Capt. Connor, of the Sierra Nevada, who arrived from the north on Monday, reports that he passed the reported scene of the wreck at 11 o'clock on Sunday, and expected to meet the Brother Jonathan near that point to exchange papers, but saw nothing of her. There was a strong wind and heavy sea at the time. He thinks that she foundered about 25 miles to the north of Crescent City and six miles from Camp Lincoln. There are two places a few miles apart in the vicinity at which boats could land, and he thinks it possible that some of the passengers may have landed in the other boats at a point 8 miles from Chetko harbor, where those reported saved came ashore. Capt Johnson, of the Del Norte, thinks the Jonathan may have foundered at a point 10 miles off Crescent City in which case some of the boats may have run down to that point.

The fact that the messenger who brought the news to Jacksonville left the scene twelve to twenty-four hours after the disaster, is the most discouraging one of all. It seems hardly possible that had any more than those reported escaped the officers would have been at that time ignorant of the fact. This terrible catastrophe has thrown the whole community in mourning. Anxiety, sorrow and horror are depicted on every countenance. Every flag in the city and on the shipping in the Bay is at half mast and the grief is general. Jas. Nesbet, editor of the Bulletin was among the passengers.

Maj. Eddy, Paymaster U. S. A., had $200,000 Government funds, which were to be used in paying off troops. The Major, before leaving, balanced his Government accounts, settled his private accounts, made his will and told some of his friends that he felt a presentiment that he should never return.

California News.

San Francisco, August 2.—A petition is being circulated addressed to a number of prominent citizens, members of the People's Party, requesting them to constitute themselves a Union county convention. The petitioners say: It is our wish and expectation, therefore, that your nomination of candidates for Legislature be made with reference to the above qualifications, and that in regard to Senatorial preferences your nominees shall be unpledged and unbiased, regarding it as a sacred obligation to vote for that man who in their deliberate judgment they may think best able to serve the State and county in this momentous period of our national existence.

Currency exchange 366a11, coin drafts, 1½a2 legal tenders, 73¾a74.

The mining share market was, on the whole better. Uncle Sam advanced $5,200. Yellow Jacket, 135, and Crown Point 15, while Potosi fell off 10.

Markets dull and unchanged.

Arrived—steamer Saginaw.

The Proclamation of Freedom.—B. F. Carpenter, the Artist, gives the following interesting incident in the history of the Emancipation Proclamation:

Chase told me that, at the Cabinet meeting immediately after the battle of Antietam, and just prior to the issue of the September proclamation, the President entered upon the business before them by saying that "the time for the enunciation of the emancipation policy could no longer be delayed. Public sentiment," he thought, "would sustain it—many of his warmest friends and supporters demanded it; and he had promised his God that he would do it!" The last part of this was uttered in a low tone, and appeared to be heard by no one but Secretary Chase, who was sitting near him. He asked the President if he correctly understood him. Lincoln replied: "I made a solemn vow before God that, if Gen. Lee was driven back from Pennsylvania, I would crown the result by the declaration of freedom to the slaves."

A Fine Retort.—On the day of the President's funeral a bronzed weather beaten soldier, anxious to obtain a better view of the procession, happened to step before a party of ladies and gentlemen. One of the gentlemen nudged him on the elbow at the same time observing:

"Excuse me, sir, you are right in front of me."

Bowing handsomely in return, the soldier replied:

"That is nothing remarkable for me, sir. I have been in the front of you for four years."

THE [illegible] STEAMER [illegible] — [illegible] calamity, [illegible] by the sinking of the steamship Brother Jonathan. Flags all over the city [illegible] displayed at half-mast in respect [illegible] others prominently known among us who were [illegible] rock upon which the steamship struck [illegible] account published this morning [illegible] City [illegible] A number of our citizens [illegible] on board, who were [illegible] to be on their return. [illegible] and a family named [illegible] Brother Jonathan [illegible] Dalles, and Mr Richards of San Francisco [illegible] The Brother Jonathan was built in New York in 1851 [illegible] about two years since, and cost [illegible] expense of about $80,000. She was the property of the California Steam Navigation Company, of San Francisco.

P. S. — Since the above was placed in [illegible] have been received [illegible] paper.

A FINE RESIDENCE. — [illegible] excellent finish [illegible] sliding doors [illegible] complete the work [illegible] partment was less than $3,000. The [illegible] by F. M. Baron [illegible] Mr A. M. Aldridge [illegible] and the painting and graining by Mr [illegible] and cold water is introduced into the [illegible] rooms by a patent heater, and the fixtures [illegible] every room in the house. The last [illegible] been conducted by the Doctor himself.

DANGEROUS [illegible]. — We were yesterday [illegible] are sometimes [illegible] and a source of danger [illegible] trade, in landing [illegible] have been obliged [illegible] wheels to prevent running [illegible] juveniles. [illegible] day, to sport about in small boats in front of the city much less boys, and there cannot be safety secured to them from awful consequences [illegible] ahead in, because it is not always in the power [illegible] of a steamer to guard against [illegible] There are from four to five boys who [illegible] about in the river in the way [illegible] at about the time when steamers [illegible] City, and from the Cascades are coming and going [illegible] the owners of the boats used by them should put a [illegible] the matter. If it is beyond their [illegible] the parents [illegible] the children.

THE DREDGING MACHINE. — The machine for dredging the channel of the Willamette river [illegible] and it is thought [illegible] time. The boat we have heretofore given description of. Her machinery is a double engine of [illegible] with 20 inches stroke. The boiler is upright [illegible] feet long [illegible] in diameter [illegible] made of the best quality of [illegible] iron. The scoop is rigged to a [illegible] a turn-table and has a dip of 26 feet. It will hold [illegible] yards of dirt. [illegible] steel [illegible] weighs 1,800 [illegible]. The gearing cables [illegible] At the opposite end is rigged a derrick with screw purchase, of capacity to drag out the largest size [illegible] in the river. The entire machine has been [illegible] by Mr D. [illegible] of the Portland Foundry [illegible] city. The machinery has all been placed in its position by Mr [illegible], engineer. When we [illegible] we shall be enabled to give [illegible] of the machine.

PERFUMES. — We are opposed to puffing [illegible] already aware no doubt, but we must be permitted to say that one of the best places to go and get a fragrant [illegible], or anything in the line of a No. 1 article [illegible] Yankee notions and all that sort of thing is at a cigar store. And should any reader choose to go to Church after the morning smoke of a Sunday and wish to appear respectably dressed [illegible] A well polished boot would add to the appearance [illegible] we can think of no place where the finest and best quality of boots, shoes, and gaiters for gentlemen [illegible] and ladies can be obtained to better advantage than by calling at a shoe store. The locality of these places may be learned upon consulting the advertising columns of the OREGONIAN [illegible] large number of cards introduced by the best business men in community, to select from.

ALDER BARK. — The steamer [illegible] was yesterday discharging a cargo of alder bark [illegible] had in tow, lay alongside with a cargo of [illegible] rial, in all probability one hundred cords [illegible] Yamhill street, which is for use at our tannery [illegible] quality of alder bark for the purpose of making a [illegible] article of leather causes considerable demand [illegible] we learn there is an abundance of it to be obtained [illegible] the Willamette and the Columbia rivers.

HEAVY MEN. — The Walla Walla Statesman has a list of six of the "heavy men" of that place, weighing in the aggregate 1,520 pounds, and then [illegible] to corral six of our heaviest [illegible] The Statesman [illegible] make a request of that kind, with the thermometer in Portland at its present standing. The weather is too hot for us here. [illegible] there is too much inclination to [illegible] Wait until our [illegible] next winter, then we will raise the stake. [illegible] doesn't flourish in a climate at over 80°. [illegible]

CIRCUIT COURT. — In Circuit Court yesterday judgments were [illegible] against Benj. Thornsby in favor of the following plaintiffs in the sums named: Walter Moffit [illegible]; A. H. Johnson $582; Thomas [illegible] on mortgage foreclosure $1,460. [illegible] 40, and property attached [illegible]

RUNAWAY. — A team ran away on Front street last evening. So long as they kept straight along the street there [illegible] done, but in an effort to leave the [illegible] the wagon was [illegible] are too high or too low [illegible] elling, and frequent [illegible] We presume those crossings will be leveled down in time, by the [illegible]

THEATRICAL. — The Potter theatrical troupe are playing a short engagement at Boise City. [illegible] the troupe to start [illegible] The Irwins are still [illegible] they are meeting with fair success. The Jacksonville Sentinel says Hayward has entirely recovered his health. He is strong and sings as of old.

[illegible] GRAND RONDE MINES. — Some excitement recently existed in regard to gold mines [illegible] Grand Ronde river. Parties who have been [illegible] that some of the claims pay moderate wages, but the mines are not extensive.

POSTPONED. — The regular [illegible] weekly sale [illegible] auction, by Mr. A. B. Richardson for yesterday, was [illegible] day next, in consequence of the [illegible] the fate of the steamship Brother Jonathan.

FOUND. — A fine black gutta percha cane, which the owner can have upon applying to our Reporter. [illegible] but his own, the owner of this party be assured he must make his title clear.

[illegible] YEAR. — The California Farmer, the [illegible] agricultural paper on this coast has commenced its twenty fourth volume. It is a complete farmer's guide and ought to be in every ranch.

THE NEW WORLD. — The steamer New World went to [illegible] yesterday to [illegible] a trip to Vancouver [illegible]

It is said that [illegible] have actually effected a sale of their [illegible] Owyhee to a New York firm [illegible]

Multnomah No. 2 [illegible] stay evening at [illegible]

[illegible] BUTLER [illegible]

THE HISTORY OF THE SHENANDOAH. — The following paragraph was published in the London Times of November 2d, 1861:

On Monday afternoon a [illegible] was posted at Lloyd's announcing the loss of the Sea King screw [illegible] near [illegible] The steamer [illegible] the Laurel, which arrived in the early part of last week, had on board 40 men who had refused to serve in the Sea King, which was reported to have had her name changed to the [illegible] confederate flag [illegible] the steamer [illegible] intelligence [illegible] announcing that the Sea King, Captain [illegible] [illegible] it [illegible] may have been made as to the picking up [illegible] and the fate of the ship [illegible] wreck of the steamer and the rescue of the [illegible] another version of the story of the men who left and came home in the Laurel. The Sea King is [illegible] have been insured for upwards of £30,000.

[illegible] the London Times attempted to gloss over the criminal conduct of England in [illegible] The fact [illegible] the Sea King [illegible] went to the [illegible] Island, where [illegible] West [illegible] the name of the pirate was changed to the Shenandoah, and he proceeded on [illegible] Hope. The story of the Laurel and Sea King was [illegible] by the English [illegible] faithless conduct. Our bill against John Bull is growing [illegible]

[illegible] of New York [illegible] Massachusetts and [illegible] Northern [illegible] [illegible] fell.

[illegible] Christian gentleman [illegible] a few years ago. It is unchristian [illegible] wrong to entertain a feeling of deep satisfaction [illegible] that this vile traitor [illegible] "plantation manners" made him unbearable among [illegible] felon begging that his wretched and worthless life may be spared a little longer. Surely the crimes of these men exceed those of all other malefactors since in the history of [illegible] others who essayed great acts [illegible] wickedness have been brought so low.

Prior to the surrender of General Johnston the late Rebel Confederacy had accumulated an immense amount of medical hospital stores of all kinds at Charlotte, North Carolina, directly imported from England just before the fall of Wilmington, which have been received at New York, after an inventory which consumed three weeks' time.

The [illegible] Washington dispatch of June 24th, says that Gen. Dix, who has been ordered to Canada on business connected with the rebel conspirators, will make a formal demand for the extradition of these persons.

The Missouri Constitution excludes from the ballot-box all rebel soldiers, Knights of the Golden Circle, Sons of Liberty, O. A. K.; forbids any [illegible] for emancipated slaves and provides for an efficient registration of voters.

The Union men of Vermont have nominated Paul Dillingham for Governor and A. B. Gardner for Lieutenant Governor of that State.

Mosby the guerrilla has opened a law office at Culpepper Court House, Virginia. To make things fit all around, says the Carson [illegible], Semmes ought to go preaching, and Forrest to teaching Sunday School.

AMERICAN BELLES. — America is justly proud of her beautiful ladies, but how many mar their beauty and lose their health and youth, become prematurely old in appearance, by neglecting to take proper care of their teeth. There can be no excuse for this, as SOZODONT, pronounced by all worthy a place between the sweetest lips, can now be had in all civilized countries.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

HAS BEEN USED FOR NEARLY

HALF A CENTURY

WITH THE MOST ASTONISHING SUCCESS IN CURING

Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Croup, Liver Complaint, Bronchitis, Difficulty of Breathing, Asthma, and every affection of the

THROAT, LUNGS, AND CHEST,

INCLUDING EVEN

CONSUMPTION.

There is scarcely one individual in the community who wholly escapes, during a season, from some one, however slightly developed, of the above symptoms — a neglect of which might lead to the last named, and most to be dreaded disease in the whole catalogue. The power of "medicinal gum" of the Wild Cherry Tree over this class of complaints is well known; so great is the good it has performed, and so great the popularity it has acquired.

In this preparation, besides the virtues of the Cherry, there are commingled with it other ingredients of like value, thus increasing its value ten fold, and forming a Remedy whose power to soothe, to heal, to relieve, and to cure disease, exists in no other medicine yet discovered.

The unequalled success that has attended the application of this medicine in all cases of

Personal Recollections of Abraham Lincoln

BY "CASTINE" [NOAH BROOKS.]

[From Harper's Magazine for July.]

It is natural that friends should tenderly and frequently talk of the loved and lost, descanting upon their virtues, narrating the little incidents of their daily lives, dwelling with minute particularity upon traits of character which under other circumstances might have remained unnoticed, and finding them out now invested with a certain interest which lives in the memory. This and the general desire to know more of the man Abraham Lincoln is the only excuse offered for the following simple sketch of some parts of the character of our beloved Chief Magistrate, now passed from earth.

All persons agree that the most marked characteristic of Lincoln's manners was his simplicity and artlessness; this immediately impressed itself upon the observation of those who met him for the first time, and each successive interview deepened the impression. People seemed delighted to find in the ruler of the nation freedom from pomposity and affectation, mingled with a certain simple dignity which never forsook him. Though oppressed with the weight of responsibility resting upon him as President of the United States, he shrank from assuming any of the honors, or even the titles of the position. After years of intimate acquaintance with Lincoln the writer can not now recall a single instance in which he spoke of himself as President, or used that title for himself except when acting in an official capacity. He always spoke of his position and office vaguely, as "this place," "here," or other modest phrase. Once, speaking of the room in the Capitol used by the Presidents of the United States during the close of a session of Congress, he said, "That room, you know, that they call"—dropping his voice and hesitating—"the President's room." To an intimate friend who addressed him always by his own proper title, he said, "Now call me Lincoln, and I'll promise not to tell of the breach of etiquette—if you won't—and I shall have a resting spell from 'Mister President.'"

With all his simplicity and unacquaintance with courtly manners, his native dignity never forsook him in the presence of critical or polished strangers; but mixed with his angularities and bonhomie was something which spoke the fine fiber of the man, and, while his sovereign disregard of courtly conventionalities was somewhat ludicrous, his native sweetness and straightforwardness of manner served to disarm criticism and impress the visitor that he was before a man pure, self poised, collected, and strong in unconscious strength. Of him an accomplished foreigner, whose knowledge of the courts was more perfect than that of the English language, said, "He seems to me one grand gentilhomme in disguise."

In his eagerness to acquire knowledge of common things he sometimes surprised his distinguished visitors by inquiries about matters that they were supposed to be acquainted with, and those who came to scrutinize went away with a vague sense of having been unconsciously pumped by the man whom they expected to pump. One Sunday evening last winter, while sitting alone with the President, the cards of Professor Agassiz and a friend were sent in. The President had never met Agassiz at that time, I believe, and said, "I would like to talk with that man, he is a good man I do believe; don't you think so?" But one answer could be returned to the query, and soon afterward the visitors were shown in, the President just whispering, "Now sit still, and see what we can pick up that's new." To my surprise, however, no questions were asked about the old Silurian, the Glacial Theory, or the Great Snow storm, but introductions being over, the President said: "I never knew how to properly pronounce your name; won't you give me a little lesson at that?" Then he asked if it were of French or Swiss derivation, to which the Professor replied that it was partly of each. That led to a discussion of different languages, the President speaking of several words in different languages which had the same root as similar words in our own tongue; then he illustrated that by one or two anecdotes, one of which he borrowed from Hood's "Up the Rhine." But he soon returned to his gentle cross-examination of Agassiz, and found out how the Professor studied, how he composed, and how he delivered his lectures; how he found different tastes in his audiences in different portions of the country. When afterwards asked why he put such questions to his learned visitor, said: "Why, what we got from him isn't printed in the books; the other things are."

At this interview, it may be remarked in passing, the President said that many years ago, when the custom of lecture going was more common than since, he was induced to try his hand at composing a literary lecture—something which he thought entirely out of his line. The subject, he said, was not defined, but his purpose was to analyze inventions and discoveries—"to get at the bottom of things"—and to show when, where, how and why such things were invented or discovered; and so far as possible, to find where the first mention is made of some of our common things. The Bible, he said, he found to be the richest store-house for such knowledge, and he then gave one or two illustrations which were new to his hearers. The lecture was never finished, and was left among his loose papers at Springfield when he came to Washington.

The simplicity of manner which shone out of all such interviews as that here noticed was marked in his total lack of consideration of what was due his exalted station. He had an almost morbid dread of what he called "a scene"—that is a demonstration of applause such as always greeted his appearance in public. The first sign of a cheer sobered him; he appeared sad and oppressed, suspended conversation and looked out into vacancy; and when it was over resumed the conversation just where it was interrupted, with an obvious feeling of relief. Of the relations of a Senator to him he said: "I think that Senator ——'s manner is more cordial to me than before." The truth was that the Senator had been looking for a sign of cordiality from his superior, but the President had reversed their relative positions. At another time, speaking of an early acquaintance, who was an applicant for an office which he thought him hardly qualified to fill, the President said, "Well, now, I never thought M—— had any more than average ability when we were young men together; really I did not"—a pause—"but then, I suppose he thought just the same about me; he had reason to, and here I am!"

The simple habits of [illegible] well known that it is a subject for remark that watchful and intelligent [illegible] take that precious life which he seemed to hold so lightly. He had an almost morbid dislike for any escort or guard, and daily exposed himself to the deadly aim of an assassin. One summer morning, passing by the White House at an early hour, I saw the President standing at the gateway looking anxiously down the street; and, in reply to a salutation, he said: "Good morning, good morning! I am looking for a newsboy; when you get to that corner I wish you would start one up this way." There are American citizens who consider such things beneath the dignity of an official in high place.

In reply to the remonstrances of his friends, who were afraid of his constant exposure to danger, he had but one answer: "If they kill me the next man will be just as bad for them; and in a country like this, where our habits are simple, and must be, assassination is always possible, and will come if they are determined upon it." A cavalry guard was once placed at the gates of the White House for a while, and he said, privately, that he "worried until he got rid of it." While the President's family were at their Summer house, near Washington, he rode into town of a morning, or out at night, attended by a mounted escort; but if he returned to town for a while after dark he rode in unguarded, and often alone, in his open carriage. On more than one occasion the writer has gone through the streets of Washington at a late hour of the night with the President without escort, or even the company of a servant, walking all of the way, going and returning.

Considering the many open and secret threats to take his life, it is not surprising that Lincoln had many thoughts about his coming to a sudden and violent end. He once said that he felt the force of the expression, "To take one's life in his hand," but that he would not like to face death suddenly. He said that he thought himself a great coward physically, and was sure that he should make a poor soldier, for unless there was something in the exaltation of a battle, he was sure that he would drop his gun and run at the first symptom of danger. This was said sportively, and he added, "Moral cowardice is something which I think I never had." Shortly after the Presidential election, in 1864, he related an incident which I will try to put upon paper here as nearly as possible in his own words: "It was just after my election in 1860, when the news had been coming in thick and fast all day, and there had been a great 'Hurrah, boys!' so that I was well tired out, and went home to rest, throwing myself down on a lounge in my chamber. Opposite where I lay was a bureau, with a swinging glass upon it"—(and here Lincoln got up and placed furniture to illustrate the position)—"and, looking in that glass, I saw myself reflected, nearly at full length; but my face, I noticed, had two separate and distinct images, the tip of the nose of one being about three inches from the tip of the other. I was a little bothered, perhaps startled, and I got up and looked in the glass, but the illusion vanished. On lying down again I saw it a second time—plainer, if possible, than before; and then I noticed that one of the faces was a little paler, say five shades, than the other. I got up and the thing melted away, and I went off, and in the excitement of the hour, forgot all about it—nearly, but not quite, for the thing would once in a while come up, and give me a little pang, as though something uncomfortable had happened. When I went home I told my wife about it, and a few days after I tried the experiment again, when, with a laugh, sure enough, the thing came again; but I had never succeeded in bringing the ghost back after that, though I once tried industriously to show it to my wife, who was worried about it somewhat. She thought it was a sign that I was to be elected to a second term of office, and that the paleness of one of the faces was an omen that I should not see life through the last term."

The President, with his usual [illegible], saw nothing in all this but an optical illusion; though the flavor of superstition which hangs about every man's composition made him wish that he had never seen it. But there are people who will now believe that this odd coincidence was a warning.

If Mr. Lincoln's critics [illegible] too much gentleness of heart [illegible] magistrate. Certainly it is that his [illegible] widening charity for all and softness [illegible] pardoned offenders and mitigated punishments when the strict requirements of justice would have dealt more severely with the criminal. It was a standing order of his office that persons [illegible] involving the issue of life and death should have immediate precedence. Nor was his kindness confined to affairs of State; his servants and all persons in his personal service were the objects of his peculiar care and solicitude. They bore no burdens or hardships which he could relieve them of; and if he carried this virtue to an extreme, and carried labors which others should have borne, it was because he thought he could not help it.

He was often waylaid by soldiers importunate to get their back pay or a furlough, [illegible] and if the case was not too complicated he would attend to it then and there. Going out of the main door of the White House one morning, he met an old lady who was pulling vigorously at the door bell, and asked her what she wanted. She said she wanted to see "Abraham the Second." The President, amused, asked who Abraham the First might be, if there was a second. The old lady replied, "Why, Lor' bless you! we read about the first Abraham in the Bible, and Abraham the Second is our President." She was told that the President was not in his office then, and when she asked where he was, she was told, "Here he is!" Nearly petrified with surprise, the old lady managed to tell her errand, and was told to come next morning at nine o'clock, when she was received and kindly cared for by the President. At another time, hearing of a young man who had determined to enter the navy as a landsman after three years of service in the army, he said to the writer, "Now do you go over to the Navy Department and mouse out what he is fit for, and he shall have it if it's to be had, for that's the kind of men I like to hear of." The place was duly "moused out" with the assistance of the kind hearted Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and the young officer, who may read these lines in his solitary post off the mouth of the Yazoo river, was appointed upon the recommendation of the President of the United States. Of an application for office by an old friend, not fit for the place he sought, he said: "I had rather resign my place and go away from here than refuse him, if I consulted my own personal feelings; but refuse him I must." And he did.

This same gentleness, mixed with firmness, characterized all of Lincoln's dealings with public men. Often bitterly assailed and abused, he never appeared to recognize the fact that he had political enemies; and if his attention was called to unkind speeches or remarks, he would turn the conversation of his indignant friends by a judicious story, or the remark, "I guess we won't talk about that now." He has himself put it on record that he never read attacks upon himself, and if they were brought persistently before him he had some ready excuse for their authors. Of a virulent personal attack upon his official conduct he mildly said that it was ill timed; and of one of his most bitter political enemies he said: "I've been told that insanity is hereditary in his family, and I think we will admit the plea in his case." It was noticeable that Lincoln's keenest critics and bitter opponents studiously avoided his presence; it seemed as though no man could be familiar with his homely, heart lighted features, his single hearted directness and manly kindness, and remain long an enemy, or be anything but his friend. It was this warm frankness of Lincoln's manner that made a hard headed "Old Hunker" once leave the hustings where Lincoln was speaking, in 1856, saying, "I won't hear him, for I don't like a man that makes me believe in him in spite of myself."

"Honest Old Abe" has passed into the language of our time and country as a synonym for all that is just and honest in man. Yet thousands of instances, unknown to the world, might be added to those already told of Lincoln's great and crowning virtue. He disliked innuendoes, concealments and subterfuges; and no sort of official "jobbing" ever had any encouragement from him. With him the question was not "Is it convenient? Is it expedient?" but, "Is it right?" He steadily discountenanced all practices of Government officers using any part of the public funds for temporary purposes; and he loved to tell his own experience when he was saved from embarrassment by his rigid adherence to a good rule. He had been Postmaster at Salem, Illinois, during Jackson's Administration, William T. Barry being Postmaster General, and resigned his office, removed to Springfield, having sent a statement of account to the Department at Washington. No notice was taken of his account, which showed a balance due the Government of over one hundred and fifty dollars, until three or four years after, when Amos Kendall being Postmaster General, he was presented with a draft for the amount due. Some of Lincoln's friends, who knew that he was in straitened circumstances then as he had always been, heard of the draft and offered to help him out with a loan; but he told them not to worry, and producing from his trunk an old pocket, tied up and marked, counted out, in sixpences, shillings and quarters, the exact sum required of him in the identical coin received by him while in office years before.

The honesty of Lincoln appeared to spring from religious convictions; and it was his habit, when conversing of things which most intimately concerned himself, to say that, however he might be misapprehended by men who did not appear to know him, he was glad to know that no thought or intent of his escaped the observation of that Judge by whose final decree he expected to stand or fall in this world and the next. It seemed as though this was his surest refuge at times when he was most misunderstood or misrepresented. There was something touching in his childlike and simple reliance upon Divine aid, especially when in such extremities as he sometimes fell into; then, though prayer and reading of the Scriptures was his constant habit, he more earnestly than ever sought that strength which is promised when mortal help faileth. His address upon the occasion of his inauguration has been well known as truly a religious document as a State paper; and his acknowledgment of God and His providence and rule are interwoven through all of his later speeches, letters and messages. Once he said: "I have been driven many times upon my knees by the overwhelming conviction that I had no where else to go. My own wisdom and that of all about me seemed insufficient for that day."

Just after the last Presidential election he said: "Being only mortal, after all, I should have been a little mortified if I had been beaten in this canvass before the people; but that sting would have been more than compensated by the thought that the people had notified me that all my official responsibilities were soon to be lifted off my back." In reply to the remark that he might remember that in all these cares he was daily remembered by those who prayed, not to be heard of men, as no man had ever before been remembered, he caught at the homely phrase and said: "Yes, I like that phrase 'not to be heard of men,' and guess it's generally true, as you say; at least I have been told so, and I have been a good deal helped by just that thought." Then he solemnly and slowly added: "I should be the most presumptuous blockhead upon this footstool if I for one day thought that I could discharge the duties which have come upon me since I came into this place without the aid and enlightenment of One who is wiser and stronger than all others."

At another time he said cheerfully, "I am very sure that if I do not go away from here a wiser man, I shall go away a better man, for having learned here what a very poor sort of man I am." Afterward, referring to what he called a change of heart, he said that he did not remember any precise time when he passed through any special change of purpose or of heart; but he would say that his own election to office, and the crisis immediately following, influentially determined him in what he called "a process of crystallization," then going on in his mind. Reticent as he was, and shy of discoursing much of his own mental exercises, these few utterances now have a value which his dying [illegible] have possessed.

No man but Lincoln ever knew how great was the load of care which he bore, nor the amount of mental labor which he daily accomplished. With the usual perplexities of the [illegible] increased by the unusual multiplication of places in his gift, he carried the burdens of the civil war, which he always called "This great trouble." Though the outward man bore great personal [illegible] meantime, few persons would recognize the hearty, blithesome, genial and wiry Abraham Lincoln of earlier days in the sixteenth President of the United States, with his stooping figure, dull eyes, care-worn face and languid frame. The old, clear laugh never came back; the even temper was [illegible] disturbed and [illegible]

LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, False and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing, and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction, even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle.

LILLIE'S LOCK OPENED

In One Minute.

NEW YORK, September 2, 1864.

F. TILLMAN, Esq., 218 Battery street,
Between Commercial and Clay, San Francisco.

DEAR SIR: WE NOTICE AN ADvertisement in your daily papers respecting the security of the "Lillie" Lock. We are aware that you well understand this lock, and, of course, will not allow yourself to be annoyed by such representations. We have just sent for one of our men at the factory, and he, in our presence, opened one of Lillie's best safe locks, after it had been [illegible] the combination turned on

By One Blow of the Hammer

Against the knob [illegible] and thereby breaking the [illegible]

The whole time occupied in opening the lock was about ONE MINUTE. We send you this lock that your friends may not be deceived by false representations, etc.

Respectfully, etc.,
A. B. TILTON,
WM. M. FARLAND.

NO PRACTICAL

Lock Picker or Thimble Rigger

OPERATE THE SAID LILLIE LOCK.

Any parties desirous of seeing the above mentioned lock, its insecurity and easy mode of opening the same, can call at 318 Battery Street, San Francisco.

GLOUCESTER, March 26, 1864.

Messrs. TILTON & McFARLAND,
Safe Manufacturers, Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen: From representations made by Mr. Lillie, I was induced to purchase one of his

So Called "Fire Proof Safes."

On the 18th of February last, a fire occurred in our block which destroyed a number of buildings, and our own with the rest. We trusted our books, papers, and all in the safe. After the fire the so-called "safe" was taken from the ruins, and on opening it we found that Everything had been Destroyed.

We send you the safe with what is left of the papers, and you will see that not one of them is legible, or strong enough to sustain its own weight. Having the curiosity to know how our neighbors fared in this fire, we noticed McKenzie & Hardy just opening their safe (TILTON & McFARLAND'S make), and its contents were found to be

In Perfect Condition.

This led us to further investigation, and we found to our astonishment that from the large amount of combustible material in Messrs. McK. & H.'s cellar—such as lard, pork, etc., their safe was subjected to a much greater heat than that of our own, we being in the clothing business and had but little in the cellar. There was another of Lillie's safes here subjected to the same fire, being, however, no better than ours.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servants,
(Signed) GEO. L. CHESBORO & CO.

TILTON & M'FARLAND'S

SAFE,

The Only Protection

Against Fire and Burglars.

For the last Fifteen Years

This Safe has been well known in California and the Eastern States. They have resisted all the fires on the Pacific Coast, and we can point with satisfaction to the record that out of one of our Safes by means of Burglars. Their fire and burglar proof qualities are so well known, that they need no further recommendation.

No one has lost a Dollar

A good assortment of Tilton & McFarland's Fire and Burglar Proof Safes to be had at 318 Battery Street, San Francisco.

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.

NEW REMEDIES; NEW REMEDIES!

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

617 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned to this State, after an absence of one year, during which time he has visited all the principal hospitals of Europe, among them those of Dublin, London and Paris. The following celebrated [illegible] of London are among those visited by the Doctor: Guy's, High street, Borough; St. Bartholomew's, Smithfield; St. Mary's, Camb. Place, Paddington; Lock, Harrow road; St. Luke's, Old street; University, Gower street; Westminster, Broad Sanctuary; Charing Cross, Agar street, Strand; London, Whitechapel road; Royal Free, Gray's Inn road; King's College, Portugal street.

DOCTOR GIBBON has also visited Doctors Acton of London, Parker of Birmingham, England, and Ricord of Paris; who are [illegible] the best physicians and surgeons in the world, and whose ability is acknowledged to be the highest in the treatment of Sexual Diseases.

DOCTOR GIBBON has obtained from them their new mode of treatment which cannot be surpassed.

DOCTOR GIBBON has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with new facilities [illegible]

Venereal Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the duties of life, or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible ills destroying [illegible] that they are cured for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private disease his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Doctor Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use, for Ten Dollars, sent in registered letter or through Wells, Fargo & Co.

Prevention Better than Cure.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who, with bogus sworn certificates, dupe the unwary. Some of the self styled doctors, whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco, are tradesmen, and became too lazy to work at their trades. Some are shoemakers, newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. Look over the San Francisco Directory and you will not find their Medical Institutes in it, but you will find their former occupations in it. Look at the Directory for 1862 and 1863. [illegible] with bogus sworn certificates, dupe the unwary [illegible]
